ROMANIAN TOURISM NEEDS TO BE RESCUED

Romania is not exactly the greatest example of an attractive destination for tourists. According to the data from Eurostat 2015, Romania is one of the least visited countries in the EU, beating only much smaller countries in the Baltic. The post-communist country has many issues preventing it from becoming more dominant on the travel market. However, many issues are not dealt with sufficiently and some are not dealt with at all. Thus, the Romanian tourism industry is currently stagnating.
