- Air Canada is the only airline connecting Belgium and Canada year-round
- Customers in Belgium will benefit from up to 12 weekly non-stop flights during the summer peak from Brussels to Toronto and Montreal

BRUSSELS, 2 August 2023 – Air Canada has inaugurated its new non-stop seasonal service between Brussels Airport and its Toronto hub, operating up to five times per week. The new route builds on Air Canada's existing non-stop year-round flights from Brussels to Montreal. Air Canada offers the most flights between Canada and Belgium and is the only airline connecting the two countries year-round, with up to 12 weekly non-stop flights from Brussels to Toronto and Montreal during the summer peak.

The new service between Brussels and Toronto will be operated with the airline's Boeing 787 Dreamliner, with a choice of three classes of service: Economy, Premium Economy, and Air Canada Signature Class, offering customers superior comfort and convenience in an exclusive cabin, with spacious lie-flat seating, personalized service, fine cuisine, extra baggage allowance and access to priority airport services. All flights are timed to optimize connections with Air Canada's extensive North American network. Seats are available for booking at aircanada.com, via the Air Canada App, Air Canada's Contact Centres and travel agencies.

"We are excited to inaugurate our new non-stop service between Brussels and Toronto," said Steven De Bisschop, Air Canada Regional Manager Belgium. "Our customers in Belgium will benefit from direct access to one of North America's most vibrant cities, Toronto, and the wider Ontario region, as well as even greater travel choice, with up to 12 weekly non-stop flights connecting Brussels to Canada. Customers can also take advantage of Air Canada's extensive route network from its Toronto and Montreal hubs, enabling convenient onward connections to destinations across the Americas."

"Thanks to Air Canada, we are delighted to have Toronto once again as a direct connection to and from Brussels Airport," said Arnaud Feist, CEO of Brussels Airport. "This new destination is an important addition to our long-haul network and will be operated by the new generation aircraft Boeing 787. This new service complements Air Canada's daily flights between Brussels and Montreal."
